

ROOSEVELT PLANS TO JUMP INTO THE FRAY

GOES TO WASHINGTON TO CONSULT WITH PROGRESSIVE LEADERS IN CONGRESS.

WILL PLAN CAMPAIGNS

To Make Attack Upon Wilson and the Democratic Policies As Soon As He Arranges Details.

Washington, May 25.—Colonel Roosevelt will be received by President Wilson at the White House tomorrow afternoon. The president invited the colonel to lunch with him. Mr. Roosevelt found it impossible to reach Washington in time. He sent word, however, he would be debilitated to call on the president during the afternoon.

Colonel Roosevelt's visit to the White House will be his first since 1906 and second since he left the executive mansion as president. On his former call he did not see President Taft, as the latter was out of the city.

Ready to Act.

The trip which Colonel Roosevelt is to make tomorrow to Washington took on new significance when it became known that the former president would hold an important conference with progressive leaders there.

On his arrival at the capital, Colonel Roosevelt will go direct to progressive headquarters, where he expects to see all members in congress.

He expects to attain first hand information as to the course of events in Washington during the last few months. This conference will determine in a large measure plans to be followed in starting the ball rolling for the fall campaign.

Colonel Roosevelt has been urged by many of his supporters to lose no time in taking issue at once with President Wilson without waiting for the formal opening of the campaign.

Plans Fight.

He said a few days ago that he desired to keep out of politics as much as possible, but recent events have caused him to consider the question of jumping into the fray at once.

He has already expressed briefly his opposition to the Wilson administration, and has advocated the canal toll exemption act and his proposition to pay twenty-five millions to Colombia.

It is understood he will make his severest attack upon the present administrative foreign policy and upon the operation of the Underwood tariff law.

What It Means.

Washington, May 25.—The conference tomorrow was arranged following a telephone message between Representative Murdock and Representative Hinebaugh, here. Mr. Murdock said that Colonel Roosevelt wanted to gather with the "boys" and Mr. Hinebaugh immediately notified progressives in both houses that the former president wanted to confer with them. The conference will be held at ten o'clock tomorrow night at presidential headquarters after the colonel's lecture before the National Geographical society.

Party plans were organized and they are to be talked over, according to Hinebaugh.

General Opinion.

"It is my opinion," he said today, "that if the progressive element in the republican party can control their party, they will endorse Colonel Roosevelt for the presidency after he is nominated by the progressive party."

"It is the desire of Colonel Roosevelt to receive at first hand from the senators and representatives a detailed statement with reference to conditions in their respective states, and to advise and confer with the delegation relative to the progressive program of legislation in the 63d congress and other exceedingly important matters upon which future action by the progressives is contemplated."

MYSTERY OF MISSING MINISTER IS SOLVED

Rev. Patmont Declares He Was Kidnaped and Tortured in Deserted House Near Columbia, Ill.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Millwaukee, May 25.—To have been kidnaped from Westville, Illinois, put into a hand car, taken in an automobile to an abandoned house near Columbia, placed in a cellar closely guarded by two Italians and to be rescued Saturday afternoon by a passer-by, was the story given by the Rev. Louis R. Patmont, the Milwaukee minister, who up to Saturday had been missing since March 31st.

The story was related by the Milwaukee minister to his congregation Sunday evening and the mystery connected with his disappearance is declared solved. After addressing the audience at Westville, Patmont was seized at the railroad station, taken to the crossing down the track, transferred to an automobile and then taken to the Columbia house. He was gagged and bound, and left in the vicinity of the house, where two Italians, who threatened to burn the place.

Saturday afternoon a farmer passing the building heard his cries and released him. Positive identification was established by Milwaukee relatives and friends of Rev. Patmont. Authorities are now puzzled to know who is the man found in Cleveland, Ohio, and identified by Patmont as his brother, as the missing minister. The body has been twice disinterred and minute inspection showed that the brother's opinion was wrong.

Prosecution is expected to be started today as officials interested in the case left today for Danville to appear before the grand jury.

Ready to Testify.

Danville, Ill., May 25.—Refreshed from a sound sleep at the home of Rev. J. F. Bickel, Louis R. Patmont arose this morning prepared to go before the grand jury today and relate his story. This body will probably not meet until late today.

A happy surprise came to the minister as he entered the dining room of the Bickel home, when he beheld his aged father and mother there.

Protection is expected to be employed by the Ministerial Association, others independently, and three sent here by the First Church of Christ of the town, are endeavoring to ascertain the item of the big red touring car which Patmont asserted carried him to the lonely farm house.

It was revealed also today that the land question had not so much concerned the merits of many plans for the settlement of Mexico's chief economic difference as the relative importance that should be attached to the question in drawing up a program for the new provisional government.

FINAL CEREMONIES HELD FOR EMPRESS DOWAGER AT TOKIO

Thousands View Cortege, Drawn by White Oxen in Solemn Services For Empress Dowager.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Tokio, May 24.—A million torches and lanterns illuminated Tokio tonight when the body of the Empress Dowager Haruko was borne through the streets in a beautiful funeral cortege drawn by white oxen. There had been no pageant of such solemn grandeur here since the funeral of Emperor Meiji, a year and a half ago.

Practically the entire American colony viewed the procession from various points of vantage. It is a rule that no Japanese subjects may look down upon a royal personage from elevated points, whether the royals be dead or alive. In strict observance of this, every door and window above the first floors along the funeral route was closed, and dark.

The ceremonies tonight were the culminating act of a series of services held daily since the official death of the Empress Dowager on April 11. Her actual death occurred two days earlier at Numadzu, but tradition has it that the empress died in the imperial family car outside the capital, so the body of the Empress was conveyed to Tokio, and driven smartly to the Aoyama Palace in a closed private carriage. At the palace she "officially" died a few hours later.

In the six weeks since then, a special temple was erected on the city, where the main funeral service was held. In the morning the service of "installation of the spirit" was performed with great ceremony. The emperor, the empress, princes and princesses of the blood were present to pray before the shrine.

By noon crowds, augmented by thousands from the country, filled the streets. The cortege stood for hours waiting for the cortege.

At dusk when the illumination of the route had been completed the imperial coffin was placed in the funeral car. Palace, and the procession formed with a large military force at its head. Amid dull yellow and white banners and torches, came the funeral commissioners, accompanied by the secretaries of state, and servants dressed in ancient robes. Interspersed were men bearing evergreen trees.

The advance of the cortege was almost noiseless, the streets having been covered with thick layer of sand. The funeral itself was heard as the funeral car itself approached. It was led by Baron Hatono, minister of the imperial household, a striking figure in white, whose way was embellished by torches.

Three white oxen in reserve plodded ahead of the two which were yoked to the funeral car. The car was of oak, four feet high, and was richly lacquered, partly in black and partly in chestnut. Bamboo blinds hung from the square openings, and brass curtains from the sides. The oxen were drawn with a white cloth and their horns were wound with material of the same texture. The people bowed and wept as the imperial hearse advanced.

It came hundreds of priests, and bearers of the court gongs and the tambours, and of many colored streamers and banners. The Princes of the blood, each with his retinue, held rods of high imperial orders. Lords-in-waiting, members of the Diet and several regiments of military and bodies of marines swelled the line.

A sacred gateway marked the entrance to the temple where the Empress and Empress had already arrived and were seated on a throne near the principal shrine, while the diplomatic corps, including George V. and the American Ambassador, had also taken their places in a reserved section.

Standing watch fires, in imitation of those used in the imperial court yards in ancient days, made up of pine fagots, were placed in various parts of the temple in iron baskets set in tripods.

When the funeral car had been drawn up before the chief shrine the dirge and food offerings were given. Other offerings included gold brocade, damasks, silk and silk thread, all placed in a box made of willow branches.

Each paid his homage by reading an address. He was followed by others representing the court and the Empire. These, over the curtains were drawn before the shrine and the imperial dirge was borne to a special train conveying it to Komoyama near Kyoto, to be laid in a plot of land near the mausoleum of the Emperor Meiji.

At the departing, cannon thundered from Shingama Bay several miles away, and a vast number of mourners bowed their last reverences.

Premier Asquith informed the house that in view of recent representations made by parliament, the government had carefully reconsidered the question, but that it had come to the conclusion that it must adhere to its determination. The premier added that to show that no question of unfriendliness toward the opposition was involved, the special stress on the acceptance by the government to participate in the opening of the Panama canal and also on Great Britain's intention of sending a contingent of warships, "showing the importance we attach to the occasion and to the good will of the United States."

ECUADOR HAS ENVOY AT NIAGARA FALLS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, May 25.—Francis Kossuth, son of the great Hungarian patriot, died here today, age seventy-three. He had been an invalid for many months and his death was not a surprise.

In January last during the crisis of his illness Kossuth was married on his sick bed to Countess Benyorsky, widow of his life-long friend. Such had been the wish of Count Benyorsky made on his death bed, and Kossuth, then an invalid, had attended the nuptials when Kossuth's illness took a turn for the worse.

Kossuth took his father's place as leader of the Hungarians soon after Louis Kossuth died in 1894. Up to the time of his illness, Francis Kossuth led his countrymen in political struggles with much success. He was at one time in the cabinet as minister of commerce and industry.

When his father died he took his body back to Hungary in accordance with the demands of his countrymen. It was then that he took his father's place.

Roosevelt, in April, 1910, during Kossuth's illness, visited him at his home.

HOME RULE MEASURE PASSED BY COMMONS

DREAM OF THE IRISH NATIONALISTS AT LAST CONSUMMATED.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, May 25.—The Irish home rule bill passed its third reading in the house of commons today, by a majority of seventy-eight.

The closing scene in the fight in the house of commons for Irish home rule brought together today a crowd of spectators which filled the chamber to its utmost capacity. Outside great crowds gathered to await the result of the debate of the third reading of the bill.

Under the rulings of the parliament act, the bill becomes a law after this stage, as it had already twice passed through all its stages in the house of commons in two separate sessions and the veto of the house of lords heretofore has no further effect.

Today witnesses the culmination of Ireland's unremitting forty-year fight for self-government. The dreams of Parnell and Parnell have become all but a accomplished fact. The house of commons have passed for the third time in three successive sessions the home rule bill in substantially the same form as was introduced a year ago by Premier Asquith. The liberal party, thinks that he veto act, which prevents the will of the people, after their representative has been approved, as the same measure, will have redeemed its pledge to the Irish nationalists, only through whose co-operation it has been able to retain control of the British government during the past eight years.

Upon the rejection of the bill by the lords, which is taken for granted, it will automatically become a law with the king's signature and within the next twelve months the new Irish parliament will be sitting at Dublin. The bill itself provides that it shall not become operative for eight months after the date of its passage nor in its entirety later than fifteen months; but there is a special provision which compels the organization of the Dublin parliament to receive the royal assent is a foregone conclusion, notwithstanding the flood of unionist petitions that have been pouring into Buckingham palace, and the constitutional veto. Although constitutionally King George would have the right to withhold his approval, it is known that he has not the slightest intention of doing so.

His veto of the home rule bill through the commons this year was marked by one of the fiercest parliamentary battles in the country's history, precipitated by the forced resignation of the cabinet and the leading almost to the disruption of the government. The regular cabinet was on the verge of a mutiny was on the verge of a mutiny was on the verge of a mutiny.

It was the blundering of the war office in permitting officers to question its orders regarding service in Ulster. War Minister Seely was forced to resign from the cabinet. Field Marshal Sir John French, chief of the imperial staff, and Sir J. S. Ewart, adjutant general, when they discovered they had been misled into signing a communique veto. ## TARIFF IS SUMMED UP AFTER 6 MONTHS

New York Sun Publication Divides

Results of Measure Into Four Parts.

(By Winfield Jones.)

Washington, D. C., May 25.—The New York Sun recently summed up the effects of the Wilson democratic tariff as follows:

Six months' experiment with President Wilson's regime for "sharpening
the wits of American manufacturers," by opening our doors to the manufacturers of other parts of the world, has given us very definite results:

First, an increase in importations
of manufactures.

Second, a slowing down of our own factories.

Third, a falling off of the exports
of manufactures.

Fourth, a falling off in revenues.

The official report for the first half year of the tariff law's operation is not available, the department of commerce's statement of imports and exports for the month of March completing the following figures for the six months:

The value of finished manufactures imported in the six months' operation of the law, October 1, to April 1, is $228,000,000, against $215,000,000 in the same period of last year; the value of manufactures' material imported is $169,000,000, against $171, 000,000 in the corresponding months of last year; the value of manufactures exported is $511,000,000, against $522,000,000 in the like period of last year; and the receipts from customs are $140,000,000, against $135,000, 000 in the same months of last year.

Accounting the deficit in the treasury accounts continues to mount.
The official statement showing the excess of ordinary disbursements over receipts for the fiscal year to be $7, 997,555 against an excess of revenue receipts of $7,355,704 for the same period of last year, when the much depreciated Payne tariff was in operation, or, to put it in ordinary terms, a deficit of $7,000,000 this fiscal year against a surplus of $7,355,000 at this time last year.

In every month of the period in which the new law has been industri-ously "sharpening the wits of American manufacturers" by bringing in foreign manufactures at reduced rates of duty the customs receipts have fallen below those of the corresponding period of last year.

Five of the six months the imports of finished manufactures have exceeded those of the same months of the preceding year; and in four of the six months the imports of manufactures' materials and the exports of manufactures have fallen short of the record of the corresponding months of last year.

True, the first month of the new law did show an increase in the value of manufactures imported than in the same month of the preceding year, but this was due to the fact that much of this class of merchandise had been imported and placed in warehouses in the preceding month of September, while the goods infact entered in October under the new tariff.

Now, after every other month of the period the imports of finished manufactures is greater than in the same
months of last year.

This increase in the imports of finished manufactures has been progressive. The closing month of the period showed also larger total imports than any other, $183,000,000, against $170,000,000 in the first month. On the other hand the exports of domestic products have steadily fallen, the figures for October, 1913, having been $269,000,000 and in March, 1914, only $184,000,000.

This seems to illustrate the fallacy of the democratic theory that "if you don't buy you can't sell."

The imports in the six months increased more than 3 per cent, while the exports decreased more than 10 per cent, in the same period.

It is in the persistent fall in the importation of manufactures' materials, however, that there is the gravest concern. No part of the muchvaunted opportunity to measure the activities of the manufacturers of the country as does the record of the imports of their requirements for manufacturing; and of the manufacturers which come in competition with them.

It cannot be said that the fall in value of manufacturer's materials imported is due to lower prices. An examination of the detailed records of the period shows in many cases much smaller quantities of the various materials brought in.

The total quantity of raw cotton imported in the six months under the new law is only 51,000,000 pounds, against 70,000,000 in the same period of last year; 112 tin for use in the plate factories 37,000,000 pounds, against 46,000,000; hides and skins 280,000,000 pounds, as against 295,000,000; rubber 62,000,000 pounds, against 62,500,000, and in many other articles of the class there is a like falling off in quantity imported.

In those articles of manufacture in which the duty was reduced in order to "sharpen the wits" of the producers at home, there has been a striking increase in importation and in most cases a corresponding decrease in exportation due apparently to a slowing down in production by our manufacturers.

In cotton manufactures, on which there was a reduction of duties, the imports show an increase of nearly $5,000,000, while the exports show a falling off in total value, despite the fact that the department of commerce is industriously tooting its horn about the wonderful work it is doing in finding markets for our cotton goods.

Meanwhile the talk about increased supplies of food and reduced prices through removal of duties on foodstuffs is making manifest its real cause. The exports of the six months show an importation of $2, 000,000 pounds of fresh beef in that period.

LONG TERMS GIVEN TO SUNDAY DRUNKS

Three "Regulars" Given Heavy Sentences for Second Offense

Drunkness.

Judge Maxfield convicted William
McGee, William Walker and James Timpany, all of Janesville, the second offense drunkness in the Janesville municipal court will be severely punished. All three of the men received long terms under the commitment law on their plea of guilty to the charges of second offense drunk-ness.

William Walker was given six months, three of which will be taken off on the order of the court if Walker will take the "cure." William Mc-Gee was handed six months also, but he did not offer to take the cure and therefore his term is a full six months.
Timpany was given six months, a full regular, was taxed nine months. Timpany was arrested Sunday night and on being questioned by Judge Maxfield and Chief of Police Champion, Timpany declared he bought the liquor
Saturday night and was just recovering from his spree, when arrested sleeping on the grounds of the old high school. Further investigation is being made by the police, as Chief Champion is making a strenuous effort to stop Sunday violations.

WEATHER MAN SPOILS SUNDAY BALL GAMES

Cardinals-Freeport Game Called Off Because of Wet Grounds—

White Sox Idle.

"Janesville Cardinals—Freeport game postponed because of wet grounds." This was the non-echoing sign that greeted the Janesville fans Sunday morning for the Driving park diamond was fit for a water polo game. Late Sunday morning members of the Cardinals crowd surveyed the muddy infield, lakey base lines and called off hostilities until a later date, phoning to Freeport not to come.

The weather man proved another disappointment to the White Sox fans who were billed to cross bats with the Broadhead Colts at Broadhead, but threatening and leaking skies prevented them from taking the rattler to Broadhead to meet the Colts. Because of the unfavorable attitude of the man from Medicine Hat who turned on the rain in a generous volume, the official opening of the season was again postponed in Janesville. Memorial day the Cardinals meet the Beloit North Ends if the good graces of the weather man can be secured, and the fans will have an opportunity of seeing a ball game.

SHAMROCK LAUNCHED FOR AMERICAN RACE

Shamrock IV, Lipton Challenger For American Cup Launches—Lipton Confident of Victory.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Portsmouth, Eng., May 25.—In the presence of a distinguished company of British sportsmen, statesmen, and society women, the Shamrock IV, Sir Thomas Lipton's latest challenger for the American Cup, was launched today from the yard of Camper and Nicholson at Gosport. Later, on board his magnificent steam yacht Erin, the millionaire sportsman, tea-merchant's guests drank enthusiastically—but not tea—to the success of his fourth attempt to win the Blue Ribbon of the Sea.

"I am making no rash predictions," said Sir Thomas, just before the gracefully lined craft slipped into the water, "but I honestly feel that my chances this time are on the winning side. I know that this will be the best boat that ever crossed the Atlantic to try for the Cup. Moreover, luck ought to be with me, considering that this is the thirteenth race for that trophy. I have been preparing for the event for seventeen years. I have learned something valuable each of the three times I lost with the previous Shamrocks, and the boat we are now launching embodies not only the results of my own experience and observation but the ripened fruits of the marvelous talents of that prince of designers, Charles E. Nicholson."

The work of rigging the Shamrock will require about a week, after which she will be put on her tuning up trials. These will continue until about the middle of July, most of the races being pulled off in the Solent, the stretch of water separating the Isle of Wight from the mainland. The present challenger is the first from this side to be constructed with a center-board. This plate drops ten feet when let down, making her total draft when rigged and manned nearly 24 feet. Another innovation is the fact that she is built largely of wood, the previous Shamrocks being entirely of metal. Laid on a framework of navalium, a recently patented metal composition, there are two wooden skins throughout—in places three—the outer layer being mahogany. Her mast is of hollow wood, the longest of that type ever constructed. A duplicate mast will be shipped to America, to be available in event of accident. The amount of canvas to be carried is still a secret. Sir Thomas intimates that the spread will astonish the yachting world.

OFFICIAL SEASON TO OPEN SATURDAY NEXT

Games Committee of the Mississippi Golf Club Plan For All Day's Matches.

Official play for the season of 1914 at the Mississippi Golf Club will be open on Saturday next, Decoration Day. The games committee have arranged for an all day tournament for suitable prizes, and request that all who will take part will kindly hand in their names to the games committee, of which Edward Bauman is chairman. It will be an open event, for which special prizes have been put up. One essential feature is that the scores made on this day will be turned in to the committee and used for handicapping for the Tom Morris Cup, one of the big features of the Western Golf Association, in which every club takes part. This year the handicaps will be arranged according to the conditions of the local courses and consequently it is necessary to turn in the scores made on Decoration Day. The score cards are also to be used for a double purpose, as the games committee will make their handicaps from them for the next club event. This year, aside from the first sixteen qualifying, the next eight will also qualify to play for a consolation cup in each event. The porch, which was blown off in the recent storm, has been rebuilt and changes made in the interior so that the club house is in excellent condition for the coming season.

Height of Happiness.

Gretchen, the little German maid, was given a dress belonging to one of the daughters of the house, who went to college. Gretchen had a historic soul and loved to "live lives." Upon returning from her "day out" she was asked if she had had a good time. "Oh, yash," she replied. "I felt shoost like a collidge girl."

YOUNG COX SIGNS UP WITH YOUNG SCOTT

Janesville Boxer Reports Hand All Healed Up, and Is Willing to Meet All Comers.

One of the main bouts to be held before the public at the next boxing exhibition, under the auspices of the Bower City Athletic Club, will be a go between Young Cox, the pride of Janesville, and Young Scott, a lad from Milwaukee, who has fought in the local ring before. Young Cox reports that his hand has fully recovered, and that he is going to stick to the finish, once he gets a successful start. There is no doubt but what Cox will be in championship form within a few months, for he is a clever youth. He has agreed with the local promoter, George Lurie, to engage in regular bouts in this city from now on.

Eighteen months later she married a $15 a week clerk.

They were happy enough for a year, and fairly happy another year.

But the close confinement behind the counter was too much for George, and Old Mortality carried him away to that land in which there is neither marriage nor giving in marriage.

Madge, the widow, and George, Jr., were quite helpless.

They received a little help from the "old folks," but there were no limousines and no butlers.

Madge might have been self-supporting if in school time she had made the necessary preparation.

BIRDS AND CATS.

One of the latest contributions to bird lore in connection with the high cost of living comes from Henry W. Kershaw, chief of the national biological survey, who has been investigating the food of birds for several years.

Mr. Kershaw's plan is to protect the birds so that they will destroy the insects and rodents which are a menace to the crops of the country.

"Notwithstanding the fact that the acreage under cultivation is larger than ever before and the crops are greater, the cost of food goes up," says Mr. Kershaw. "Meanwhile the destruction of farm and orchard crops by insects amounts to many millions each year.

"If any part of this loss can be prevented it will be so much clear gain. Since birds perform such invaluable service, every effort should be made to protect them. This can be done by furnishing nesting boxes for certain species to nest in, as swallows, martins, wrens, woodpeckers, great crested flycatchers and others; by planting berry bearing shrubs about the farm and orchard as food for the birds in winter, and by the establishment of bird sanctuaries where birds may be reasonably safe from their natural enemies and be permitted to live and breed in absolute security as far as man is concerned.

"Not the least important element is safety from cats. Friendly exposures to birds from householders who regard tabby as a necessary member of the family are not likely to be successful, or if so, the experiment is apt to end in the death of the confiding birds. Birds and cats do not thrive in the same neighborhood.

"The value of birds to the farmer is thin on the ground, but we do not usually think of birds as having any direct relation to the public health. To prove that they do, however, it is only necessary to state that five hundred mosquitoes have been found in the stomach of a single night hawk; that in a killer's stomach hundreds of larvae of the salt marsh mosquito have been found; and that many shore birds devour mosquito larvae. As mosquitoes are known to carry the germs of such serious diseases as typhoid, malaria and dengue fever, it is the birds that by destroying such germs confer a distinct benefit on man.

It may be added that not infrequently ticks are eaten by birds, and that the tick which is responsible for the spread of Texas fever among cattle has been frequently found in the stomach of a bob-white.

THAT DOG TAX.

Of all the absurdities that have been enacted into city ordinances the recent ordinance providing for a tax of two dollars per male dog and four dollars per female dog, caps the climax. The primary object of a dog license is two-fold: first, to rid the community of worthless, homeless curs, proposed law which was passed by the mayor and one councilman and given its publication last Saturday, provides that after the dog is caught he is impounded. Then if anyone wants to buy him why the pound master can sell him, if he has not been claimed by the owner meantime. How about it if the owner comes for his dog after it has been sold, not knowing that it had been impounded? What is to prevent a man having a valuable dog stolen, taken to the pound, then sold to someone else while the owner is searching for his pet? The law is a joke. It looks as though it was some boy's play. Perhaps, however, like the smoke ordinance, like the awning ordinance, like the street sign ordinance, like blocking sidewalks and lots of other equally important ordinances, when passed it will not be enforced. If this be true, then why have it on the books at all? If the council wants to do something that will be of real benefit to the community, let them make a personal revision of the ordinances already on the books that are not enforced, either way they are enforced or strike them from the books, and if they still want to be busy on public business let them provide playgrounds for the younger generation of citizens; if they must have a dog ordinance make the prices for tags somewhere within reason—one dollar for a male dog and two dollars for a female, and then enforce it. Let not one dog-owner escape.

ENGLAND'S TROUBLES.

England's troubles are not alone confined to the warlike suffragettes just at present but they must also take into consideration the mass of resistance of the establishment of home rule. With the suffragettes defying the police and law, destroying property, creating riots at home, the protestant Irish across the channel are drilling and preparing to resist, with their lives if need be, what they consider is an encroachment upon their rights. Parliament is doing the "watchful waiting" act, but soon the pot will boil over and the fat will be on the fire in earnest.

WAR OR PEACE?

It appears to be a question yet whether the A. B. C. conference at Niagara Falls is to terminate in peace or war. While the envoys are busy enjoying the scenery, Villa and Carranza are closing in on Huerta and by the time the confab is ready to discuss terms Huerta may be eliminated and then what will come? It is dangerous ground that is being trod just at present and the outcome may mean a general war with Mexico or a peaceful solution of the whole problem.

THE STALWART GATHERING.

Opinion of the press throughout the state generally is opposed to the revival of the old-time stalwart organization seeking to control state republican politics. The consensus of opinion is that the movement at this time was very ill-advised and inappropriate and can bring nothing in the way of success or clarifying the present complex political situation. The question of taxes is the issue of the campaign and it must be met with fairly and squarely.

There is an epidemic for other streets throughout the city this spring and as a result Janesville is going to have some of the best thoroughfares in southern Wisconsin. The street department is working overtime in making everything ready for the summer and is doing yeoman service.

That Fourth of July celebration promises to attract thousands of visitors from all over northern Illinois and the committee in charge of the affair promise it will be a gala day as far as entertainment is concerned.

The up river season is ready to open. Navigation at night is dangerous at best, but launch owners should take special care to pay particular attention to the small boats and canoes that have become a part of the river's fleet and an enforcement of the head light ordinance might prevent many possible accidents.

Janesville is making marked improvement in its numerous buildings and private homes these spring days and when everything is finished there will be many radical changes to greet the eye of the visitor.

In all the spring rush the fair grounds really show the most improvement. Preparations for the coming fair are going on apace and when the gates open for the big event the results of the hard work of the directors is going to show for itself.

On The Spur of The Moment

May. Now doth the tired business man improve each shining hour. Among the trout streams of the north.

To bring back pep and power. He wades about in high top boots. And talks in wondrous ways. About the brook trout that he caught. Back in the halcyon days. He spends all of his hard earned dough. And energy as well. And it will be worth the time to hear. The stories that he'll tell.

The old man plants his garden seeds. And waits for them to grow. He's going to save a fortune sure. On vegetables, you know. He'll rake and hoe and drag and spade.

About the crop of onions he will garner after awhile. The baseball season opens and he goes and roots a lot. And quite forgets until next spring. His cherished garden spot.

The family begins to quarrel. About the summer plans. The try to pick out some resort. But somehow no scheme pans. The mushroom hunter hits the trail. The king of Maytime fools. And carries home with him at night. A mess of nice toadstools.

The back bear band gets busy and goes on his springtime frolic. And Willie of the boulevards. Puts on his two-piece suit.

How to Write a Popular Song.

such as love, mortgage on the old farm, midnight in the graveyard or grandfather's false teeth—a subject that will appeal. Write all of the slush you can think of on the subject and make it rhyme so far as possible. There is no ironclad rule as to the rhyming. You can make "given" rhyme with "heaven," or you can make "river" rhyme with "ever," and if the singer sings badly enough nobody will ever know the difference.

After you have finished the heart-breaking poem have some picture show pianist set it to ragtime music. Send it to the publishing house and sign a contract giving you one-tenth of 1 per cent of the net earnings. In that way you may make as much as $25 on it if the song goes well, besides getting your full name on the outside cover.

It is a great game to follow if you own two or three gas plants or street railroads on the side to keep you in food.

At Last. At last we can sit down in ease. And smoke our pipe. Where'er we please. The meals are being cooked once more. And living's much of a bore. At last we have got time to think. And we do not sleep in the sink. We've got a bed. Where we can snooze. We've found our collar and our shoes. The days of beating rugs are past. We have some peace. At last, at last. Old Mr. Bloom. 's on the run. Thank all our stars. Housecleaning's done.

Signs of the Times. A Los Angeles man forgot that he had just been married and stayed out all night. Now his wife asks for a divorce. Some women are unreasonable.

Some men are foolish enough to work so hard during the day that they are too lame to dance the tango in the evening.

Carnegie institute professor says eugenics will prevent all crime in this country. Yes, but can we wait that long? General Coxey is riding to Washington on a mule. When the mule gets tired, perhaps they can change places. To be on the safe side, it might be well to leave the heavy ones on until the Fourth of July. If it is shot up much more, the Texas border will begin to look like point lace.

The jingoes who shout for war are the last ones to find the recruiting office.

Manners Maketh Man.

F. Hopkinson Smith, in one of his sketches, lamented that in the hurry and rush which obtain in the present era good manners have become conspicuous by their absence, saying: "We live so fast that we have not time to be polite." His lament is recalled by a story told by a lady from Virginia who lately visited New York. The story was about a prayer credited to "Uncle Nat," an old dorky who had served for many years as butler in the house. The prayer concluded in this wise: "Make me so lib dat when Ah does Ah will know what to say when Ah meets mah Hebenly Master—so ho sure Ah done had proper raisin' and learnt ma manners."

Rebuked. That little affair in Zabern has taught the German civilian that no liberties are to be taken with those who wear the soldier's privileged garb. Little Rudolph, aged ten, had joined the Boy Scouts. Little Rudolph's father ventured to smile indulgently upon his son as the lad in full field kit of khaki set out for a practice hike across the turnip fields that lie about the ancient city of Dinkelsbühl. ## HIBERNIANS ENJOY FINE CELEBRATION

OBSERVANCE OF THIRTIETH ANNIVERSARY IS LONG TO BE REMEMBERED EVENT.

HEAR ABLE SPEAKERS

National President James J. Regan Gives Stirring Address at Banquet Sunday Evening.

Members of Division No. 1, Rock County, Ancient Order of Hibernians, observed the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the lodge with a long to be remembered banquet and celebration here on Sunday. For enthusiasm and fellowship, for attendance and brotherly friendship, for the stirring of the most delightful banquet, all of which marked the day, the event was one of the biggest successes in the history of the order in Southern Wisconsin.

National President James J. Regan of St. Paul, who was the distinguished guest of the Janesville Hibernians for the day, made a stirring address at the banquet which was served last evening at the Terpsichorean Hall. He struck the keynote of the evening, ideals when he declared that true Hibernians, loyal sons of old Erin, made the highest and greatest type of American citizenship. His remarks, tinged with rare patriotism, which was inspiring and with his wonderful oratorical gifts he held his audience in the closest attention. Mr. Regan is one of the most brilliant orators in America, and recently spoke on the same platform with President Wilson at the unveiling of the Barry monument.

W. H. Dougherty presided at the banquet which was served in faultless style by twenty of the youngest members of the order. Two hundred persons were seated at the tables.

Rev. Dean E. Reilly gave the address of welcome and Judge Melver of Milwaukee, the founder of the division, spoke on the early history of the order in Wisconsin. James Sheridan, county president, reviewed some of the achievements of the Rock County branch, mentioning the money expended for the purchase of the new hall, the high inspiration which the members have enjoyed. Mrs. L. J. Cronin spoke in behalf of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

State President J. P. Callan made a splendid address and the many speakers were: State Secretary John P. Jefferson, Division President J. D. Dawson, Vice President Charles Newton, Rev. Father W. A. Goebel, Joseph Delaney and Postmaster J. J. Cunningham. Rev. Father Knox and Dr. J. V. McKee had messages of vital interest. Songs were sung by J. H. Burns and Miss Mary Cronin, both of whom responded to enormous applause. A delightful and inspiring concert of Irish airs which was thoroughly enjoyed. Miss Gertrude McGinley presided at the piano and the George L. Hatch orchestra furnished music during the banquet hour.

Fifteen new members were initiated in the afternoon at Bagley's and Spanish War Veterans' Hall. Judge Melver of Milwaukee, here and vigorous 75 years, National President James J. Regan, State President J. P. Callan of Milwaukee, Rev. Father Knox of Madison and Rev. Dean Reilly took part in the ceremonies.

Telegrams of congratulatory were received from State Vice President Matthew Carpenter of Milwaukee, Harry O'Boyle of Fond du Lac, John Callopy and Dr. Purcell of Milwaukee, who were unable to be present. Their messages were read at the banquet by County President Sheridan.

Arrangements for making this year's function the best ever held have been made by the committee. The menu will be served by the ladies of Circle No. 8, after which the following program will be given: Toastmistress, Miss Nita Rotiger, Teacher, public school.

"Modern Knights" Miss Cora Withelmy Solo—"Selected" Dr. E. F. Richards "Modern Ladies" J. L. Hay "Schnitz" Misses Strong and Hansen "Modern Chivalry" S. C. Burnham "Star of the Summer Night" Owen, Davidson, Johnson, Richards "A Modern King Arthur" Horace Blackie Solo—"Selected" Miss Emily Sewell

The Real Irishman. Canon Hannay lectured in London the other day on the stage Irishman, which is not, he says, a bit like the real thing. Irishmen do not drink with careless bonhomie, with a jest on the lips and laughter in the eye, he said. They do it with a certain shamefaced deliberation, and they do not sing. As a rule a drunken Irishman staggers silently home, and if he opens his mouth at all it is to talk serious speeches about politics or religion. Irishmen do occasionally borrow money, but not with the genial air of conferring a favor on the lender. They do it with groveling servility, declares Canon Hannay.

Dear Sir: I have a tame plum tree on which a large number of plums set every year, but they rot so badly that I seldom get a full crop of good plums. Is there anything I can do to prevent their rotting? M. O. S. Answer: Yes, spray with Bordeaux mixture when the tree is in full bloom. As a rule, spraying is done on most fruit trees as the blossoms fall, but the Bordeaux mixture is not poisonous and so may be used when the tree is in full bloom and must be used at this time on the plums to prevent the disease causing the rot complained of. The formulas for Bordeaux mixture are as follows: Copper sulfate (blue vitrol) ... 4 lbs. Fresh lime ... 5 lbs. Water ... 50 gal. Of course, for only one tree a very much smaller quantity would be required. Most people, however, have other uses for Bordeaux mixture and it is therefore well to make quite a quantity. One-fourth amount given above will be sufficient for 12 to 15 trees of ordinary size. The following "Helpful Hints on Making Bordeaux Mixture" is from the Wisconsin Horticulture. The receptacles used may be of a smaller amount be varied to suit conditions. In place of barrels, half barrels or large pails may be used and jars may be used in place of pails. Iron or steel vessels should never be used. Care should be used to follow directions exactly. (1) Have on hand three barrels and two pails (wood or iron). (2) Twenty-five gallons of water in each of two of the barrels. (3) Dissolve 4 pounds of copper sulfate in one barrel by suspending in a coarse burlap as near the surface of the water as possible in this way it will dissolve in a few minutes, while if allowed to settle to the bottom it would require several hours to dissolve. (4) Place the lime in a pail and slake by adding water slowly until a paste is formed. (The lime for Bordeaux mixture should be slaked exactly as for building purposes.) (5) Pour this lime paste into the second barrel and stir thoroughly. Aeschylus at Syracuse. For four days in April dramas of the Athenian tragic poet Aeschylus were performed in the old Greek theater at Syracuse, in eastern Sicily. Aeschylus has long been popular in Syracuse. Twenty-three centuries ago Athenian prisoners taken in the great defeat before that city, and sold as slaves after the custom of the time, earned their freedom by reciting the verses of their great poet. Perhaps some of the men thus set at liberty organized a company and acted "Prometheus Bound" or "The Persians" in the same theater where the same plays will be presented next spring. The poet who is held in favor for 2,300 years in one place cannot complain of public neglect. "Everybody's doing it" Doing what? Reading the want ads.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE FAMILY MOLOCH.

"YES, my home is just about to suit me," I heard a man say the other day with an air of immense self-satisfaction. There's a lot of talk about compromising between husbands and wives these days, but my wife doesn't expect any such nonsense. She's glad to have things the way I want them."

Now I happen to know that man's wife and I can testify that what he says is true. She is a quiet little creature as self-effacing as he is self-assertive. He certainly speaks the truth when he says that she runs the house. Why shouldn't she when she learned long ago that it was the only way to keep peace in the home? Why should she expect any such nonsense as a fair compromise of interests and desires when her husband has long ago proved to her that he does not intend to consider her wishes in anything.

One often meets people like this man who boast of the fact that things are run to suit them in the family, the club or the social group to which they belong. They seem to take vast pride in this assertion. To my mind it would be difficult to find a poorer reason for pride. Why do they have things their own way? Because people love them so? Not once in a thousand times. Just because they know how to make others uncomfortable when they do not get their own way.

In a great many families there is one member of this type. Why do we always go to the seashore when it doesn't agree with the children or me? Well, you know, John is so fond of the ocean.

"Why don't we take an apartment where the work would be easier for me? Because Richard would rather live in a house. He's never liked apartments."

I can't possibly go. Yes it would be a great treat, but it's Philip's lodge night and he hates to have the house left alone.

So it goes.

In many houses the menu is planned almost entirely with reference to one person. "He doesn't like it" excludes every dish, however well recommended by price, nutrition and the tastes of the family. While, therefore, so fond of it is the entr'ee to any dish even though no one else cares for it, in fact, it is supposed to have preferences. They eat what is best before them or go without.

You notice I say "he." That's partly to avoid the awkward repetition of "she," but partly because it usually is "he."

Of course, the family Moloch sometimes is a woman, but in these cases she is more apt to rule by the rod of delicate health or the "I shall worry" threat, than by a direct ordering of the kitchen.

No, I don't claim that women are always better than men. Far from it, but I do think that generations of supremacy have made men more inclined to tyranny than women.

HOUSEKEEPING HINTS.

A most delicious sandwich butter is made by creaming half a pound of butter and then adding a half cupful of whipped cream, a seasoning of mustard, salt and a dash of cayenne. This butter is used to spread on the bread, and is sufficient for filling as well.

Marzipan.—This is a most delicious confection made of almond paste or powder. Blanch a pound of Jordan almonds in a mortar or use a chopping bowl and a wooden potato masher if a mortar is not at hand. Mix when the almonds are fine with equal parts of confectioner's sugar, moisten with orange juice and mold in any desired shape. The most natural looking fruit may be made of this marzipan, which is tinted to resemble the different fruits. After the paste is molded it is baked and then tinted.

Egg-Plant With Nuts.—Put a good sized egg-plant into boiling water and cook ten minutes, then cut in halves and scoop out the center, leaving a wall an inch thick. Chop that taken from the center and mix with four tablespoonfuls of bread crumbs, 12 chopped almonds or half a cupful of peanuts. Season with salt and pepper and fill the shells. Stand this in a baking pan, cover with greased paper and cook slowly in the oven until soft and dark. Dish carefully without breaking.

Rhubarb.—This is the time when rhubarb is plentiful and it should be canned and put on the fruit shelves for the winter. Canned in sterile jars after cutting in small pieces, the rhubarb need not be cooked. Put the jar, packed as full as possible, under the cold water tap, and let the water run to overflow the jar, then seal and keep in a cool place. The rhubarb will keep and be ready for any kind of dish, from pies to puddings.

Spiced Rhubarb.—To two and a half pounds of rhubarb, washed and cut in thin pieces, add a cupful of mild vinegar, two pounds of sugar and a tablespoonful each of cloves and cinnamon, tied in a cloth. Cook steadily for an hour and a half. Put this in jelly glasses.

Nellie Maxwell.

The so-called English walnut is almost exclusively the product of France, whence this country imports from fifteen to twenty-five million pounds annually.

If he didn't talk to me, I certainly wouldn't waste any time on him, little girl.

STISIE CONGO.
You can't cure them, my dear. You can only do your best to prevent them. Wear wide-brimmed hats and carry a sunshade when you go outdoors. BLUE EYES.
(1) If a young man is thoroughly respectable, there is no harm in letting him escort you to and from church, if your parents are willing. Do not loiter on the way home from church.

(2) He deserved the slap and if he cares anything for you he will not be angry very long.

(3) He's not much of a boy any more and he is decidedly too old for you.

(4) Yes, indeed.

(5) Let any of your business, my dear. Let your friend attend to his own affairs without your prying into them.

(6) It depends upon your education and whether or not you have the ability to do either.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please give me a recipe for molasses candy?

RED LIPS.
I certainly will, honey. Here it is: Molasses Candy—Two cups molasses, two cups brown sugar, one-half cup water, one-half cup vinegar, two tablespoons butter. Boil until brittle when dropped in cold water. Before taking from fire add one-quarter teaspoon baking soda, stir a couple of times to mix thoroughly, then pour on greased plate and pull as soon as cool enough to handle.

Women Worth While.

MISS MABEL BOARDMAN.

By Selene Armstrong Harmon.
Miss Mabel J. Boardman, secretary of the American National Red Cross society, is responsible for the fact that over two-thirds of the Christmas packages mailed in this country every year bear the little tag of mercy. Miss Boardman is responsible for more than this. It is due to her, more than to any other, that the National Red Cross society is today one of the world's greatest factors for the relief of suffering in times of disaster and that it is conducted on as business-like principles as the affairs of a great corporation.

Miss Boardman probably works harder than the average woman who leaves home every morning for an office, bent on a bread-winning mission. She is at her desk in the offices of the American Red Cross society in the war department every morning, not later usually than nine o'clock.

In Washington, where the working day begins proverbially late, this is held to be the hour of the early bird, the busy bee, and only the most industrious of citizens. Once at her desk, the secretary of the Red Cross society figuratively rolls up her sleeves and begins a day of strenuous activity. She gives orders, receives reports, confers with a corps of officers and assistants with regard to the working of every branch of the organization, dictates letters and decides important matters involving sums of money that would make the average woman dizzy. Or, in times of national stress and calamity, as for instance upon the occasion of the Dayton flood, she is on the field directing the disbursement of money for relief purposes and commanding a small army of trained nurses and other workers.

In spite of these activities, Miss Boardman finds a certain amount of time in which to enter into the best of the social life of Washington at festive seasons. Her father's splendid house in the fashionable residence section of the city is the scene of frequent entertainments.

Household Hint

When washing woodwork for repainting, use no soap, but wash with soda and water. If soap is used the paint will not dry so quickly. After sprinkling clothes before they are taken from the line will save a great deal of time and work. Just before hanging them from the line take a whisk broom and sprinkle them evenly. A clean whisk broom should be used for this purpose.

Go to the opera with Katherine Strickland with a woman who had just returned from Europe—the woman who had dined with a queen and been feted all over the continent. Hold a reception—hostess in this house where she felt, save for her Dan, a strange, meet people who spoke in what to her was a strange and altogether unmanageable fashion—with an accent she did not recognize as belonging to her own plain western speech.

Mary caught her breath with a sob of dismay. The very thought paralyzed her. "I can't, Dan," she finally managed to blurt out. "I'd do anything else for you—but not this."

"If I not ask you again," replied Slade, ominously, and poor Mary, too excited to interpret the threat, picked up her sewing and her newspapers and made for the door.

"Tell them I had a headache," she less, "tell them I had a headache, that's a fashionable enough excuse, anyway." And, terrified, she fled out of the room as Katherine Strickland and her father were announced.

CHAPTER II.

As Slade turned from the frightened, insignificant figure of his fleeing wife, he saw a woman of perfect poise and queenly carriage—a woman a trifle haughty and insolent in her youth and beauty and assured command of all the intricacies of social grace and charm. Her wide, full eyes met his with an engaging, frank curiosity to see this new factor in the political world. Her gown was a triumph of soft, shimmering silk and alluring chiffon—a gown that emphasized the charm of her proud, statuesque figure. She was the sort of woman that makes a man glow with pride to present as his wife or daughter. She was all that Mary Slade was not.

Slade stood looking at her, fascinated, forgetting for the moment the man she was with, remembering nothing but the magnetic personality of the woman whose reputation for doing big things in a big way was already known to him—a woman whose eyes meeting his gave back flash for flash and understanding for understanding.

Almost mechanically Slade found himself acknowledging Senator Strickland's formal presentation of his daughter. Hesitatingly he offered his hand, which the girl, perfectly at ease, grasped with a cordial, sympathetic pressure. Her eyes were looking critically into his, much as if she were trying to read him through and through and take his measure for future use.

Her easy, graceful acceptance of the situation, her thoughtful inquiry for Mrs. Slade's health, prompted by well-bred sympathy rather than any curious interest, and the cultured modulation of her splendid voice, charmed him as no woman had ever done before.

There was nothing of the shy, retiring ingenué in Katherine Strickland's up. She was a woman of splendid physique and wonderful mental development. Her appeal to a man was that of a dominant intellect as much as of a lovely woman. She immediately impressed Slade as being keen-witted, strong-minded and clever. His admiration displayed itself in his shining eyes and his unusually affable, attentive manner.

Suddenly he found himself comparing his own little old-fashioned wife with this handsome, self-possessed woman before him. What a wife Katherine Strickland would be for the governor of a state! What a picture she would make presiding at the head of a millionaire's dinner table! How wonderfully such a woman would adorn the richly furnished rooms of his newly built mansion! Instead of the work-worn fingers of his wife, continuously fumbling with darning threads, he saw, in a mental vision, this woman's lovely hands constantly engaged in unwinding the threads of problematic political tangles. Here was a woman who would be a man's wife and comrade—the very antithesis of the household drudge his own wife was content to be, with no interest outside of the four walls of her home and no desire for anything bigger in life than the daily routine of breakfast, dinner and supper, washing on Monday, ironing on Tuesday, and so on to the end of the week—week after week in the same deadly rut. Here was a woman who would "go along with a man"—possibly a step ahead, blazing the way for new and greater glories and recognizing no limit.

Slade brought his reflections to a sudden halt as he remembered the girl's father.

"Why, what has happened to you, senator? Your face looks different than it did this afternoon."

"Her fault," replied the senator, with a smile of tolerant affection, indicating his daughter. "She made me cut my beard this way. It's French."

Katherine laughed a delightful, throaty little laugh.

"Nonsense, father," she protested. "Of course, I like the West, but I don't believe in being absolutely typical. I was horrified when I got back and found you so blatantly the typical, much-carbonated Westerner."

"Mr. Slade," resumed Strickland, "a few influential men from different parts of our state are having a meeting in town tomorrow, and I want you to meet them. I'm arranging a little impromptu dinner, and thought Katherine might be able to persuade Mrs. Slade and yourself to join us."

"Oh, father, tell the truth," Katherine interrupted. "These gentlemen want to meet you, Mr. Slade. I hear we're to expect great things of you. You see, I've been mixed up in politics all my life, and I do love to have a hand in them."

"She'd run for president if they'd let her," teased her father.

"Indeed I would," the girl admitted, brazenly. "I've got politics in my blood, and home doesn't seem like home unless politics are being brewed in our dining-room. So you'll both come, won't you—you and Mrs. Slade."

Slade was stammering his acceptance when Strickland interrupted abruptly.

"How'd you like to be governor, Slade?"

Slade threw back his head with a laugh that was intended to denote complete unconcern.

"Oh—that talk! Did the evening papers get that into your head or—?" and he paused significantly, "did you put it into the evening papers?"

Strickland's laugh was a practical admission.

"It would mean a hard fight, Slade. The water-front crowd's against you, and you can't get on without their influence."

"Not in this town, at least," amended Katherine.

"You've got to have Wesley Merritt, his paper, his highfalutin editorials and his speechmaking—and his wife," Strickland explained. "He and his crowd run the town."

"Oh, you mean my neighbors?" asked Slade. "They'll come around," he finished, merrily.

"But, man alive! Only today Merritt's attack on you was scurrilous. I remonstrated with him myself. He's your out-and-out enemy. I've tried to get him to—come over and shake hands, but he swears he'll never cross your threshold."

"I guess they'll come when I want 'em to come," Slade interrupted, with an assurance his auditors could not understand. "In fact, I'm looking for 'em any minute now, and he consulted his watch."

"You're looking for them—here—to-night?" gasped Strickland, showing plainly he thought Slade was making a joke of the matter.

"Yes, tonight," replied the would-be governor, quietly, and turned to Katherine.

Strickland subbed, a question growing in his mind as to whether he had fully measured the man he expected to use for his own political and financial ends. There was in Slade's method of fighting a direct and open quality that would make him hard to handle in the crooked and indirect ways of political life.

Katherine Strickland's eyes narrowed as she met Slade's gaze. Her quick, calculating mind saw in this man the possibility of realizing her highest hopes and ambitions. With such a man a woman could scale any heights—reach any goal. He was hard—yes! But a man needs to be hard in these days and times if he is ever to accomplish anything. In her fertile brain smoldered ambitions as great as his ambitions that she now realized would never be attained unless she made some great, radical change in her life.

She had pushed her father as far as the man would—could go. She had outdistanced every girl in her circle. She had reached high, but she had triumphed. Now she was at the end of her tether. It was a matter of making some one huge stroke or sinking back into stupid obscurity, a situation all the more bitter because of her previous successes. The thought of settling down into the everyday life of the western city where she was born made her very soul squirm. Surely there was something more in life for her. Surely there were bigger goals to be gained.

She had never realized how empty

She Was All That Mary Slade Was Not.

the old home life was until now, when she suddenly found herself a part of it again after the brilliant European season and the stimulating, exciting life in diplomatic circles at the capital. The thought of remaining in the West, a big frog in a little puddle, had grown positively hateful to her. Big or little herself, she wanted a big puddle. She was quite satisfied in her own mind that no puddle would be so big that she couldn't become a frog of considerable size in it.

Now, as her restless brain and soul clamored for higher goals and a wider field, the thought of Slade's millions, Slade's dominating, forceful personality, Slade's reputation for sweeping everything before him, Slade's probable governorship, flashed through her mind like a burning streak of electric fire. With him, with his weapons, what a career lay before a woman!

Just as suddenly she found herself wondering what sort of a woman had been a mate to this man for so many years. She was conscious of a poignant pang of envy—jealousy almost—against this woman who had the opportunity which was denied her.

"Well, what do you think of your own country, now you're back?" she heard Slade's voice saying. "Seem big to you?"

"Oh, I like Washington," she said, bringing herself back to the conversation with difficulty.

Her father, noticing her abstraction, remarked indulgently: "She likes Washington, Slade. She likes the East, but she doesn't tell it to everybody, on account of father's votes."

Now, Slade and I love our western city, eh, Slade?"

"Well," with some reluctance, "it's a good starting point," Slade admitted. "Ah!" Katherine exclaimed, now thoroughly herself again. "There's a man for you! He's not going to let a town stand in his way. Mr. Slade, this is father's Waterloo. He's been the worst of parents. We children never know how they're going to turn out. If father had only listened to me it would have been Washington for him—Washington for me. But he wouldn't leave the West. If there'd only been a drop of Napoleon in father," she concluded with a sudden burst of vehemence.

"Napoleon!" repeated the senator.

"Yes, Napoleon. He got what he wanted, and nothing ever stood in his path. I just love the way he rode over poor old Josephine's heart, don't you?"—and she turned to Slade.

"But he was right!" she continued, earnestly, as if she were making a plea for something that lay very close to her own heart. "Why should we let anyone hold us back? I wouldn't. But mother didn't want to leave the West, so father stuck to his town and his friends and his state. Now he stands in the background and boosts other men politically."

"He wants to boost you," she added, suddenly.

"Letting out secrets," her father accused, playfully.

But Katherine was never more serious. "You're his dark horse," she persisted.

"You're a lucky man, senator," Slade broke in, as he watched Katherine admiringly. "You're a lucky man to have a charming young woman behind you in the race."

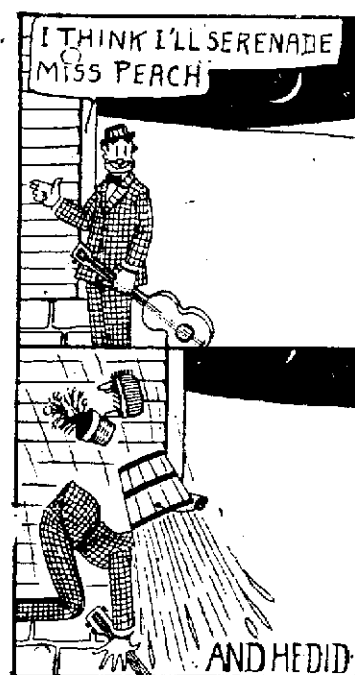

"That's all we women are for," answered Katherine, bitterly, "standing behind some man and watching him do things."

"Why, child alive, you do things yourself," the senator remonstrated. "She makes busts, Slade—heads. Done some big busts in Europe."

Katherine sighed and leaned back wearily in her chair. "Oh, in my feminine way, I model," she admitted. "But if there'd been one drop of Napoleon in father I shouldn't have had to fall back on molding clay. I should have been molding," she hesitated, and then finished daintily, "opinions and people."

may eventually give to women rights to which they are entitled, but good health, which is the birthright of every American woman, must be hers before she can fully enjoy the privileges which woman's suffrage will bring. Women who suffer from those dreadful pains, backache, headaches, irritability, nervousness and depression, symptoms of organic trouble, should rely on Lydia E. Some Younger at 65 Than Others Are at 40 Years.
Old age is not marked by years, but by the stiffened frame, the hardened tissues and arteries.
So many people whom you meet about the time they reach 40 begin to say, "I can do this, and I can't do that, because I'm getting old." They begin to act old, feel old and they are older in appearance than they who are much more advanced in years.
When you begin to feel old, when your energy begins to fail, build yourself up with our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol. It is a wonderful blood-maker and strengthener.
H. C. Klyce, of Corinth, Miss., says: "I am 75 years old and my blood was very poor. I was in a run-down condition and felt that I must have a tonic. Vinol was recommended and it built up my strength until I felt as strong and well as ever."
Thousands of old people have found in Vinol just the medicine they need to build up the feeble, weakened system and create strength. If it fails, we return your money. Smith Drug Co., Druggists, Janesville, Wis.

Are You Getting The Most Out of Your Talents.

Two women living side by side in a town not a thousand miles from here were talking about the steadily mounting prices on the everyday articles of life. One woman was a graduate from her home High School, and had a really splendid training in music. She was the mother of one little girl. Her husband was holding down a fairly good position, and was a steady man.

The other woman had been forced to leave school at the end of her Sophomore term, due to the fact that her mother's health was rapidly failing. She never had the opportunity to return to school; neither did she possess the musical talent nor training of her neighbor.

She did possess in a marked degree the grit that is so vitally necessary to play the game today with a smiling face and your shoulder to the wheel. She had two children, and while her husband was to her way of thinking (happy woman) "the very best man in the world." He did not have a position that brought what you might term a princely salary.

She had by a judicious use of the want ad page of her own home paper earned many a dollar at home. The other woman instead of earning, whined. . . . Would you use the want ad page?
